THE MONTH'S NEWS.

Demons, 3011 JUNE, 1866.

The Russell-Gladstone Administration is at all end, at least will come to an end as soon as Lerd Derby can make arra gements for supplying its place. From the tone of the remarks made by the Ministerial lea lers in both Houses on Monday night, it was clear that the Government were resolved to stand by their dealaration, and stand or fall with their bill. The only doubt seemed to be whether there would be a resignation simply, or whether they would apply to her Mojesty to dissolve Parliament. With regard to the latter course, however, it is sufficient to say that it does not appear to have been seriously discussed,—at all events it is never said to have been ever hinted at during the audience at Windsor on Tuesday. The only question then was that of resignation. Her Majesty, it appears, in wishing the Cabinet to reconsider their decision, had expressed the opinion that their defeat had only been on a point of detail, and that therefore it was not necessary that they should resort to the extreme course of throwing up their posts, more especially as the disturbed state of the Continent rendered it highly inexpedient that there should be any change of Ministers at present. But the explanations given—the same explanations, we presume, as those given in Parliament on Tuesday—that their view of the question was worthy of respect. Lord Stanley is doing his best to form a Cabinet, having received her Majesty's commands to do so, with leave to take his own time about it. The task, however, is more difficult than might be at first supposed. His lordship, never very eager for office himself, has to consider the wishes and interests of his supporters and followers. But a Conservative Government par et simple could have little chance of a prolonged existence, for the ultra element will require to be mollified, if possible, by the admixture of semething of a more expansive character. Besides, the manner in which the occupants of the Cave have helped the Opposition renders it impossible to pass them o first great battle of the war has been fought, and the soliciers of Italy have had to retreat before the defenders of Italy have had to retreat before the defenders of Italy have had to retreat before the defenders of the famous Quadrilateral. On Sunday the hostile forces met an the line of railway which connects Verona with Mantua. The Italians, who were under the immediate command of the King, had crossed the Mincio, on the previous day, and were marching on Verona, when they were confronted by the Austrians, under the Archduke Albert, advancing towards the Mincio. A severe battle ensued, lasting the whole of the day. The Austrians were victorious, and the Italians, after great losses in killed, wounded, and prisoners, were forced to recruss the Mincio. King Victor Emanuel, after having effected his retreat, re-established his head-quarters at Breecia. It is asserted that the chief object of the attack by the army under the King's command was to force the Austrians to quit the line of the Po that General Ciadini might cross the river with his corps d'armee, which was to move on Rovigo. Of course this piece of strategy was spoiled by the reverse of Sunday. All kinds of stories are afleat anent the movements and designs of Garibaldi. At the time we write nothing is known as to the exact whereabouts of the noted chiefitain. His volunteers are said to have repulsed the Austrians at Ladrone, on Lake Idro; and Garibaldi having been in this neighbourhood would seem to indicate that the future scene of his operations is in the rear of the Quadrilateral, on the line of the Austrians under Benedek, gained in the first instance some advantages over the Prassians, but on Thursday the Imperialists seem to have sustained a severe defeat at Nachod, on the frontiers of Bohemia, and on the same day at Truntenau and Munchengrats. At Trantenau, the Austrians, according to the Prussian accounts, lost between 3000 and 4000 killed and wounded, besides "several thousand prinoners." The victors set down their less at 1000. According carried everything before them. They have now complete possession of Saxony and Hanover, and Hesse Cassel, and are now going to take possession of the Grand Duchy of Nassau on account of its ruler having espoused the Austrian cause. After dodging about for some days, the Hanoverian army, about 12,000 strong, had an indecisive action with one of the Prussian corps by which it was surrounded. The blind king afterwards refused the conditions offered by Prussia, viz., that the Hanoverians should be dismissed to their homes, the officers to retain their horses and arms, and the King and the Crown Prince to have full liberty of choice as regards their future residence. Yestorday the Hanoverian army surrendered at discretion, and the men were dismissed to their homes. The war material was given up to the Prussians. We may now, therefore, regard the kingdom of Hanover as a thing of the past. The Federal army of Bavarians, Wurtemburgers, Badeners, and Hessians, 50,000 strong, under the command of Prince Charles of Bavaria, are at last pushing on from Frankfort with a view of threatening the Prussians on the Rhine.—Armaments are being pushed forward rapidly in France, and intervention on the part of that country is looked for before long. It will be at the expense of Austria should it take place.

The Barl of Derby has at length succeeded in forming a purely Conservative Ministry. With the exception of the Colonial Department, all the principal offices have their chiefs in the House of Commons. The office of Under Secretary for the Colonies does not seem to be filled up yet. Besides the Duke of Someract and the Earl of Clarendon, Mr. Lowe and Sir Robert's Hoest were sounded with a view of learning whether they were disposed to accept office under Lord Derby, but, like the two peers, they declined. Sir Robert's hostility to Mr. Disraeli is well known and indeed never concealed. It would be bootless to go into the story of the fruitless negatiations, for all at present rests on mere report. The great fact is that coalition is a failure, though it is certain that those Whigs who had overtures made to them have undertaken to abstain from and discourage any opposition this session. No statesman of modern time has fallen so often to rise again as Earl Russell; but this is evidently the last time, now

"he falls like Lucifer.

Never to hope samia."

again as Earl Russell; but this is evidently the last time, now Never to hope again."

The banner of the Liberal party when next it is raised aloft, will be grasped by younger and firmer hands. The last act of the outgoing Minister was to raise two Irish peers, Baron Cremorne and Viscount Monck, ot the dignity of peers of the United Kingdom—the former as the Earl of Dartrey; and the Governor-General of Canada by the title of Baron Monck, of Ballytrammon, in the county of Wexford.—In the new Cabinet, the substitution of Lord Stanley for the Earl of Malmesbury in the Foreign Department is a great improvement. Except that the Marquis of Salisbury, Mr. Henley, and Sir E. B. Lytton do not hold

The great and important contest for the Queen's Prise and the gold medal of the association, at 200, 600, 800, 900, and 1000 yards, created great excitament towards its close. Captain Burrs, 29th Kent, had made at the 1000 yards distance 66 marks, and his victory was halled as certain, and he was congratulated on all hands, when it was suddenly whispered that a young Scotchman, named Cameron, had yet to fire who had made a very decent core at the other stages. He presently took up his position, shot, and made 69 points, heading Captain Burrs by three points. The winner is a tectoialler, nimeteen years of age, and has been a volunteer two years, and it is said he never fixed before beyond 800 yards, and until his arrival at Wimbledon never used a Waltworth. His countrymen carried him in triumph round the ground, and the band of the London Scottish played "See the Conquering Hero Comea."

The Elcho Shield was also won by Scotland, with a total of 1170 roints. England having made 1121, and Ireland (133). The highest score amorgat the Scotch markame was that of Mr. Wikin, who made a total of 166 p.data The English Eight also improved upon their performances of last year. They then won the Shield with 1653 points; they now made 1121, but still they were in a minority of 49. The Irish Eight advanced similarly from their score of 935 in 1865 to 1039 at the Hight and was marked increase in general efficiency on the part of the competitors. Mr. Miller, with a score of 153 in the Beglish Eight, and Mr. Martin in the Irish Eight with 150 points, were the foremost among the representatives of their respective nationalities.

The Lords and Commons, which was the last match, ended in favour of the Upper House, which polled 278 points again 12 de 40 the Commons. There were only four competitors on each side, and the ma it has made inquiries which prove that these statements were not true, that they had been misled by false information, and that the proprietors of the paper have consented to pay the sum of $230 to Mr. and Mrs. Kent in name of damages.

A beavy fall of black rain took place a few days ago near Abardeen. The Abardeen Journal says:—The black rain showers, which are now so wall known in Scotland, and about which the inhabitants of a part of Aberdeenshirs are in the way of speaking wi h no greater setonishment, when one of them falls from a peculiarly-coloured dark cloud, blackening materials exposed to it, than they speak of a white shower from a mowy cloud, have been at last recognised in England. Between the beginning of January, 1803, and the middle of January, 1805, there have been no fewer than eight suthenticated black showers in Scotland. Seven of these fall in Sisten and the extensive surrounding district. Two of them were accompanied with pumios stones, some of the balls measured eight to ten inches in diameter, and weighed upwards of a pound avoidupis. The first four, including the Carluks shower, and the eighth, were contemporaneous with outbursts of Vestwius, and the intermediate three with those of Bians. But new through the instrumentality of the Rev. Mr. Rust of Siains, who was the first to draw general attention to the Scottish showers, it has been discovered that England gets her shere likewise of black showers, although she did not think that she was so distinguished. On the 3rd May of the present year (1865), at 11 a.m., and again at 4 p.m., the town of Birmingham and surrounding country were for three quarters of an hour each time enclosed with black thouse producing darkness and rain. Accidents took places in the streets, whicles were upset, and gas had to be lighted at some of the crossings, and nearly in all places of business. Mr. Rust, writing for information, got inquires instituted, and the result is found to be that a large quantity of black rain, similar to the Scottish, fell, and blac

LOSS OF THE SHIP YOUNG LOCHINVAR, OF

Rome curious details are published regarding the loss of the ship Young Lochinvar, belonging to Messers. M'Diarmid, Greenship Young Lochinvar, belonging to Messers. M'Diarmid, Greenship Young Lochinvar, belonging to Messers. M'Diarmid, Greenmiles south-easter of the Dogs, off the north-eastern end of Harstan.
The news of the wreek was received at Foochow on the 16th of the same month, and the British Consul there communicated with Lieutenant Leard, of her Majesty's gusboat Havoe, asking him to proceed to the spot in search of a missing boat containing five men. According to the Hong Kong Daily Frast, he refused to do this on the ground that he could not leave the port till the arrival of the Admiral, and up till May 14th he had taken no steps whatever in the interests of humanity. The commercial community were about to send out a tug steamer, the first they could obtain, when the arrival of the missing boat, with all the survivors except ons man vides were interested in the survivors except on man vides was into the circumstances of the versek took place, when it was found that no blame was attachable to Captain Brunton, whose "nourse of action was perfectly justified." The owners of the Young Loshinvar have very properly called the attention of the representatives of Liverpooi in Parliament to the particulars of this case, in order that they may ask some explaantion from the Admiralty. The Young Lochinvar was from Sydney to Foo Chow, via Shanghai, and had discharged her inward cargo at the latter port.—L'asyou Mail, July 14.

Fornes Minino Report.—The Lackies Reporter of 8th instant says:—The history of the last few days can scarcely be termed satisfactory to those who watch with interest the progress of gold discovery in the district, although there is but little room for despondency. On Saturday lest the weaking of a prospect of 15 counce to the district, although there is but little room for despondency. On Saturday lest the weaking of a prospect of 15 counce to the dish in No. 22-3 North, and the respit of the total district first-rate dirt, seemed to leave the matter of whather "Thompson's" would prove rich downwards no longer in doubt. Since the early part of the week, however, we have heard nothing very flattering from the "far North," and the result of the trial washing of No. 19 being but 5 outnoss to thirty-five loads has produced the impression that the lead is either very "patchy," or that two or more auriferous gutters exist in the immediate violnity of each other, and that some of those who imagine they are on the main line are not so in reality. Another fortsight, however, will go far to prove which of these suppositions is correct. The Southern end still maintains its full reputation of productiveness, No. 5 having sold on Thursday last 125 ounces as the result of a few days nuggeting, and No. 16 having at last struck the gutter and washed 2 dwts, to the dish. The next claim above (17) had a trial washing on Thursday, and out of about 30 leads obtained 10 oz. THE awful facts which have been disclosed by the Commission at Jamaica show how important to a country is the possession of a ruler whose mind and judgment are clear, who is neither subject to paroxysms of fear nor to the exaltation of that anger by which men equally are deprived of their reason. The language of the Commission is decided, although delivered with the moderation of an official report and in view of these alterials. an instorical account of the gradual development of the State policy in reference to education. This history is germane to the discussion which has been opened up by the introduction of the Government Education Bill. The first provision for public education in California was made in the Constitutional Con-vention held in 1849, when the half a million an official report and in view of those ulterior proceedings which may place the culpable before another tribunal. The facts are no longer disputed. It is true that in the hilarious enjoyment of that horrible butchery, officers of the Government wrote, even exag-gerating their cruelties—and talked with random glee of the multitudes who had fallen. It was said, indeed, that more than two thousand persons had perished in this dreadful affair. It now turns out that something less than a thousand were executed or subjected to milder but degrading punishments. But there is not a single teature of cruelty represented in the original accounts which has not been amply illustrated and proved by the Commission. is an awful reflection that men speaking the English language, many of them from English homes, not having themselves suffered any personal injury from the party involved in this insurrection, and its suppression, could nevertheless so lose all the characteristics of their country, and even of human nature itself. We had indeed in India an example of what might be done under great provocation, but sensol fund might be unnecessarily rich, while for other internal improvements money might be much wanted. But, on the other side, it was urged that if the school fund were not kept sacred, it would be perpetually encroached upon, and that, too, on very insufficient pretexts. Ultimately a majority decided in favour of keeping the fund interdecided in favour of keeping the fund intact. To this common school fund were also to be paid the proceeds of the sixteenth and thirtysixth sections of township school lands as allotted by Congress. In the first instance some fifty thousand acres of this land seem to have been sold by various township authorities, and the proceeds were never heard of. for the support of schools. The first Superintendent of Public Instruction made his first report in 1851. Although everything was then in its infancy, the school estate, to be gradually realised upon, was esti-mated to be of the magnificent area of 6,380,320 acres, representing a prospective fund of 7.975,400 dollars. There were then 6000 children in the State between four and eighteen years of age, and several private schools, but few public schools. He made several recommendations, which were embodied in a bill presented next year. This bill met with conpresented next year. This bill met with considerable opposition from those who were opposed to educational taxes, but at last it passed. It reversed the denominational tendencies of the previous law, for it provided that no books of a genominational of sections.

dency should be used in any common schools, and that no school should receive any apportionment of public money unless free from all no books of a denominational or sectarian ten tionment of public money unless free from all denominational and sectarian bias. For the first time, too, it levied a State school tax of cents on every hundred dollars of the taxable property of the State, and authorised towns and counties to levy a maximum tax of three cents per hundred dollars. There was no reaction upon this policy of an educational tax. From this time forward it continued, the only change being a continuous in-crease in its amount. The State school fund, however, was to be used exclu-sively for teachers' salaries, buildings being pro-vided for out of the land fund and local revenues. A petition was presented this year (1852) by the Roman Catholic Bishop of MONTEREY praying for a pro rata support to certain mission and Church schools, and the Superintendent advised compliance with the prayer. Accordingly, in 1853, the legislation of the State vacillated once more, and Roman Catholic schools fulfilling the conditions were allowed a pro rata support, conditional upon their efficiency.

In 1854 the school fund was replenished by the addition to it of fifteen per cent. of the State poll-taxes. An anti-sectarian amendment of the law struggled partly through the Legis-lature, but lapsed before finally passing.

In 1855 this bill was reintroduced, and, after a hard struggle, became law. It provided that no sectarian books should be used, and no sectarian doctrines should be taught in any public school under penalty of forfeiting all public support, and that all teachers should be duly examined, and approved by legal authority. This was the final struggle on the sectarian question. The law has never been repealed. Denominational schools vanished as public schools. This law also increased the school revenue by empowering cities to levy a school tax up to twenty-five cents on a hundred dollars, and counties to raise their maximum to ten cents. Local Boards of Education, and local superintendents, were also provided for.

Under the pretence of danger which does not exist, and of a necessity of which they themselves are the judges, they break down all laws, human and divine, and imbrue their hands in innocent and divine, and imbrue their hands in innocent blood. They say that a thousand things would have happened if they had not abused their power. Even now there will be some monsters who will maintain that it was neces-In 1857 a new Superintendent took charge of public education. He made many recommendapublic education. He made many recommenda-tions, specially an increase in the taxes, and the policy of making all schools free schools. A law was passed in the following year, enabling school districts to levy a tax; but the Act was badly drawn; several wealthy landowners re-sisted it successfully, and evaded payment. In the same year, the report showed that the education was far behind the needs of the State, sary to slaughter some five or six hundred human beings by the executioner and to burn down a thousand houses to thwart a conspiracy which it is now clearly proved never existed, except discontent and local insurrection could come under that name. He cape retaliation for crimes so atrocious they will not be able to shake off the memory of these also pointed out that the school estate was less valuable than supposed, part of it being found to frightful scenes, or, except with bitter repentance, to purge their conscience from the deep and indelible stain. Accordingly, in 1860, the

In 1861, another law was passed adding to the school fund one-half of the State poll taxes, and three-fourths of the fines due for non-payment of those, taxes at date. This year was also remarkable for a futile attempt to reincorporate the sectarian element into the school system. We have just received the report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction of the State of California for the years 1864 and 1865. Some of the information therein contained will be acceptable to our readers at the present juncture, and the present of the present of the present of the present juncture. tures, was presented against it, and the bill was

A fresh Superintendent was elected in 1863. He strongly recommended free schools and increased taxation. In the following year a fresh law was passed, though not without considerable opposition. This provided for an annual State school tax of five cents for every hundred dollars of taxable property for a county tax State school tax of five cents for every hundred dollars of taxable property, for a county tax of not less than equal to two dollars for each child between four and eighteen years of age, and not more than thirty cents to the hundred dollars. It also made it the imparative duty of public school trustees to levy a direct property tax sufficient to maintain a school five months in the year whenever the State and school money in the year whenever the State and school money shall be insufficient for the purpose.

This is the last change in the law of which we have information. The statistical tables show that out of 95,000 between the ages of four and fourteen, only 50,000 are enrolled on the school register, and the average daily attendance is only 30,000. The attendance at private schools amounts to 12,500. The annual school expenditure amounts now to 883,000 dollers, or to about £176,500.

This instructive summary of the history of the cducational policy of California shows several things. In the first place, the policy has been gradually developed, the question having been discussed or dealt with nearly every year. Secondly, the needs of the State have not yet been overtaken. Thirdly, the tendency is towards perfectly free schools. Fourthly, that the principle of a special educational tax grows in favour although much opposed by large rural landowners. Fifthly, that local and central taxation are proportioned, and central money is only given for salaries. Sixthly, that after a long struggle with the sectarian difficulty, principally waged with the Roman Catholic clergy, the unsectarian principle has triumphed. This instructive summary of the history of the the unsectarian principle has triumphed.

All these points are well worthy of the consideration of our own colonists at this juncture, especially as indicating the drift and tendency of events in a democratic community.

Hype Park on Sunday.—Happily the riots and disgraceful scenes which have taken place for two or three Sundays an Hyde Park may now be considered as things of the past. There were a great number of people in the park yesterday, many of whom had no doubt been attracted by curiosity, and some possibly had gone there in the hope of sexing, and perhaps adding in, a disturbance; but everything passed off very quietly, and those who muslly preach she he park on Rundays were allowed to do so without any attempt being made to molest them. Precaution had again been taken by the authorities to have a large number of police in plain clothes, and also in uniform, scattered through the crowd, and a large reserve of forty or fifty men was kept at the Central Police ristion ready to act at any moment, so that any turbulence on the part of the "rowdies," who might have assambled en the park for the purpose, would have been speedily quelled. Arrangements of this kind will, no doubt, be made for some time yet, until the spirit of animosity which has been raised of late has entirely died away.

The LATE FIRE IN GEORDE-SILBERT.—The fire which brake out in the shop of Mr. Skinner, draper, Georgestreet, on Saturday morning last (a report of which appeared in the Herail of Saturday) was more destructive than was at first apprehended; a great portion of the stock has been totally destroyed, and the rest is all more or less damaged by either fire or water. The stock is insured in the Commercial Union Insurance Company's office for $4000, and the building, which is the property of Mr. Wyatt, currier, Pitts-street, is insured for $42000. At the time the fire was discovered, Mr. Skinner and his family were all asleep, and quite unconscious of their dangerous position until aroused by the constable on duty in the neighbourhood, who was the first to discover the fire. Not the nighted thee can be formed as to its origin, as Mr. Skinner states that he saw all

The Germon band was in attendance, and played an excellent selection of music. In addition to the distinguished visitors above mentioned, there was a very large attendance of ladits and geuttemen. MINIATURES IN OIL.—Several ministures painted in cil ere Lew on view at Mesers. They are from the studio of Mr. T. Price, of No. 7, Bligh street, late, we believe, of London. There is a considerable variety of them; some very small, of a size adapted to brocches and lockets, &c. Amongst the most remarkable are admirable likenesses of his Excellency and Lady Young, of the French Empress, and of the late Mr. Gordon Cumming, of Allyre, the renowned African Lion Hunter. Mule Bruzeling on The Clarence—The Clarence and Richmond Examiner says:—Mesers, Bundock, Barnes, and Co., have lately introduced into the district two pure level Spaniah asses, male and female, with a view to commence the breeding of mules. For large burdens mules are very proper, and are remarkably sure footed; they are much aranger for draught than our horses—are often as thick-set as dray heaves, and will travel several months together, with six or eight hundred weight on their backs. They are much hardier than the horse, very much cheaper kept, subject to fewer diseases, and will live and work twice as long. They take so much after the mare from which they are bird, that they may be procured of any kind, light or heavy as the owner pleases. All over America, North end South, nutles are used in preference to horses, particularly where rough work and chance food are the order of the day. In Brazil, they are used for every purpose that horses or oxes are put to elevebures, although they are just as expensive to buy as horses—240 being about the lowest price. In that country a system of mail coaches exist, the coaches being drawn by mules travelling at the intended of the miles and hour, and the produce of the plantations is brought long distances from the interior to the coast over the most difficult country on nutles. In the Argentine Confederation, the country is for the most purities—horse are used here unless in the vicinity of the Andes, the traffic acres which into Chill is entirely carried on by means of mules. ATBLETIC SPORTS AT THE ALBERT GROUND.

ATHLETIC SPORTS AT THE ALBERT GROUND.

A STRIPS of popular sports came off at the Albert Cricket Ground, Rediern, on Saturday afternoon. The programme compiled the events. They were all keenly contested by a goodly number of athletes, and the winners, in addition to the pain of victory, were rewarded by substantial recognition of their prowess. Mr. S. Cohen was the judge, and Mr. George Curits the starter. No one could take exception to the manner in which their duties were performed; and all the arrangements of the committee were complete and satisfactory. The ground, which has recently been top-dreased with loam at considerable expense, was in first-rate order, and those who are acquainted with such matters say that the Albert Ground at Redfern is now one of the firest cricket enclosures in the world. Several improvements have been made in the premises since last year. A neat and substantial fence has been erected in place of the wire hurdles, which barrier was found to be insufficient to prevent the encroachments of the speciators. A retiring stoom for luties has been made under the grand stand, and there is now also a room for the accommodation of those who take part in the games. In the outer enclosure, opposite the Albert Pavilion, a gymnasium has been put up, and it is intended in the future to give prizes for the horizontal bar and the targoes. The weather on Saturday was most favourable for the enjoyment of the ground about 4 o'clock, yet the holiday makers suffered no inconvenience, as accreacy any rain fall. There were between two and three thousand persons on the ground, and the attendance included a great number of ladies. The large brase band which exists in connection with the establishment of Messraw. W. M. Alderson and Sons was stationed on the grand stand, and materially enhanced the pleasure of the visitors by their performances.

This was perhaps the first "three-logged" race which has been rum in the colonies, though from the fisconess of the runners it is probable that they have had a good deal of practice. Two couples rolled over at first starting, but soon were on their legs easin. The inner legs (left and right) of each pair of runners were bound together, but the steps of the mnn were all well adjusted, and they sped over the course in a fact and not ungainly manner. DREADFUL HORSE ACCIDENTS.—On Sunday the 9th instant two accidents occurred to members of the family of Mr. Peter Lenehan, of Gocup, which has added another store of grief to that unfertanate man. Coming from church that morning his closet son, Michael, incentionly walked behind a horse that was hung to the fence, when the animal 'let fy,' and struck him in the face, inflicting a sovere cut on the left cheek, which bled so copiously that many persons suspected that the hemorrhags arose from some internal injury. However, Dr. Hester, upon examining the wound, set their minds at ease on that point, by dressing it, and procouncing its probable recovery with proper care, in a week. The same evening a younger son, named Peter, about cleven years of age, was sent to a neighbour's house about a mile distant, and to prosecute his journey speedily he mounted a herse berehacked and proceeded on his errand. Finding that he did not return that night it was supposed that, being dark, he had chosen to remain where he was till morning, but as he did not return on the Monday morning sexe of the family went in search of him, and about three-quantities of a mile from home they found him lying insonstite, where he had evidently been all night. Dr. Hester was vent for, and upon examination discovered the skull to have been factured, with two deep include wounds extending into the brain which was ociting from them. Although the poor boy is alive and takes doed, he is rotally unon-schue, and his receive is considered exceedingly problem-skies, Juneal Zimer.

bolding a position almost as important as that of the Bank itrelf.

I do not enter upon the question of currently. I regard that as a separate and subordinate question. What the country at present wants is not currency, but confidence, and that can only sent the property of the property of the property of the property of the statistical by a correct and full knowledge of its resources. It may be matter for serious inquiry how far it is desirable and safe to enlarge the circulation of Bank notes, or how far it is fair that certain concerns trading in money should be at liberty to issue notes, whilst others equally trustworthy are "precluded from doing so; but upon this I do not enter. I do not consider the enlargement of note circulation so essential to the interests of the country as the maintenance of credit. The practice of paying by cheques has become so general since the passing of the present hank act that currency is immensely economistic; and it may be will further economised by a more general ase of the same means.

I respectfully submit these views to your consideration, and it will be a great pleasure to me if the suggestion I have made meet your approval, and if you consider it capable of being practicaly carried out, with advantage to the country.

Henry Louis Bertrand, under sentence for the wilful murder of the late Henry Kinder, was placed in the dock. The Attorney-General appeared on behalf of the Crown; Mr. Windeyer appeared for the prisoner.

His Honon addressed the prisoner briefly, stating that an order had arrived from the Privy Council in Rogland to stay proceedings in his (Bertrand's) case, until the decision of that tribunal upon the case were made known. The order which had just been recrived took all power out of the bands of the Judges here. Of eighteen prisoners, eight were discharged and one was remanded.

Benjamin Wright and George Thomas were charged with breaking and entering into, and steeling from a store. Sergeaul M. Keogh deposed that he received information in consequence whereof he proceeded, about 10 o'clock last night, accompanied by constable Larkina, to Fonlow-place, where Denis M. Durmott gave the prisoners into custody, for having broken into his store, and steeling therefrom goods of the value of about £26; searched Wright, and found upon him these scarfs, a lot of matches, a knife, and two keys, one being a skeleton key; in the store were two bundles of goods ready to be removed, and in one of them were some scarfs of the same pattern as those found upon Wright. Denis M. Dermott deposed that he left the store between 5 and 6 o'clock, and, having locked it up, gave the key to John M. Googh his partner in business as wholesale drappers, carrying on business in Fonlow-place; the goods produced are the property of the firm, and were not packed up when he locked up and left the store at 5 o'clock. John M. John W. Began deposed that shout half-past 9 o'clock last night he observed that Mr. M. Coocy's store-door was open, which, being somewhat extraordinary, his suspicions were excited, and he called out, but received no abswer; went in search of Mr. M. Coocy and told him what he had seen. THE CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS OF SYDNEY.

(From the Sydney Meil, September 15)

No. XXXII.

The Averballar Berevolent Society of Blues.

The very title of this charity will probably be strange to many of our readers. It was cetablished on the Bad of May, 1855, and has therefore been in existence over ten years. But it has not courted publicity; and its operations although limited have been, upon the whole, so successful that it has not as yet been found necessary to make any appeals for increased support.

It is modelled after a society which has been in existence in England since the year 1824, and has for its object the relief of persons who have been educated in Christ's Hospital, London, or the widows and erphans of such persons. The scholars of Christ's Hospital are very peculiarly habited; the most straking features in their costume being a long outer garment—half coat half wrapper—of dark blue, and a queer little flat cap, which covers but a part of the head. It is from this uniform that the scholars of Christ's Hospital are styled "blues," and that the institution itself is often called, in common parlance, "the Blue Coat School." It is according to our modern notions asything but handsome or graceful, but no doubt it was thought quite the thing in the days of Edward the Sixth, when it was more generally used." But very many eminent men of the present day have worn the dress of Christ's Hospital and are proud to acknowledge that fact. It is a glorious old institution notwithstanding that, like many others of a similar character in our father land, it has been greatly abused. Although nominally a charity and intended to provide a good education for the children of persons who were too poor to fulfill this part of their parental duty, Christ's Hospital has become refer the most part so situated as to have friends ready and willing to push them on in after life; and the very fact of their having been educated at this institution is in itself a great recommendation. But among the great numbers of "Blues" who

In South Australia there is a similar society—"the South Australian Benevolent Society of Blues"—of which we have heard but little, but which appears to be working well.

The action of the society which forms the subject of this paper, is intended to be as nearly as possible the same as those of the English association. Some considerable time must yet elapse before there can be any pensions granted to distressed "Blues" or their widows, as in England; but small gifts or loans are to be had by such as stand in real need of them, and as come within the scope of the society's operations. As yet the demands upon the society have been small. The last report speaks of but £55 appropriated from the funds, and all in the way of loans. The expenses also are small—33 6s. 2d. for those of the year preceding the last report. There is a sum of £300 to the sredit of the society and yielding interest. We do not quite understand from the subscription list, as printed, what was the amount of the year sevenue in the way of donations and subscription, but those for about three years and four months are stated to have been £261 19s., which wou'd give a general average, in round figures, of nearly £80 per annum.

The only persons who can become members of this society are such as "have received their education upon the royal and ancient foundation of Christ's Hospital." Every annual subscriber (being a "Blue") of one guines is entitled to vote at all general meetings of the society, and those resident beyond the district of Sydaey, or otherwise unavoidably absent, can vote by proxy; such proxy being in writing, and the person holding it a member. Subscribers to the funds of the society who are not "Blues," are not considered mem'ens, but the vice-pations, of whom there are many, are nominated by a committee from the principal subscribers of this class. The present office-bearers are w. T. Pinhey, J.P., president; Mr. John Wells, vice-president of the society, held on the 12th of October in each year, that being the saniversary of t who is not an annual subscriber to the extent of one guines at the least.

From the time that the amount subscribed exceeded the sum of £100—which was very soon after the commencement of the society's operations—one-third of the annual subscriptions and the interest of all money invested has, according to the rules, been applicable towards the general objects of the society. The remainder is to be invested until the funds amount to £600, when one-half of the annual subscriptions and the interest of the invested money may be applied to purposes of relief. When the funds arising from the invested balance shall amount to £100, two-thirds of the annual subscriptions and interest may be expended; and when the capital shall amount to £2000, the whole of the annual subscriptions and interest on money invested is to be applied to the general sbjects of the society. The £2000 and all subsequent donations are to form a permanent fund, which is not, under any consideration, to be reduced. But, judging from the past, it will, we fear, be a very considerable time ere this end is achieved.

Relief in the present state of the funds is, according Relief in the present state of the funds is, according to the rules, to be afforded either by gifts in cash, or by small leans, to be returned by fixed instalments; but in point of fact, the assistance hi-berto given in the shape of losns would have been more accurately described under the head of gifts; for we believe there has been no instance of repayment as yet, and probably the advances were, for the most part, made ander such circumstances as precluded any reasonable expectation of repayment. The accounts of expenditure, however, do not show fully the amount of

The duty of the committee is to inquire into the merits of every sase submitted to them, and into the character of the person distressed, and to afford such relief as to them may seem meet. There is no limit to the extent of this relief, but such as may be imposed by the state of the finances. And we have already shown that when the disposable balance in the hands of the treasurer is insufficient to meet any case of real emergency, the members of the society are not allow to dip into their own pockets to supplement this balance.

But perhaps the way in which this society is most useful is to provide a brotherly reception for such "Blues" as come to seek their fortune in this new land, and a watchful care of any members of their famairs who may be left in need of that care. A friendly introduction to business men is often of far greater value to a new cemer than any pecuniary assistance would be. The latter would probably be but temporary at beet, while the former will most likely place him in a position to earn a respectable livelihood. Nor is help of this kind centined to new comers. All "Blues" who may from unforesees circumstances be thrown out of employment are expressly invited to leave their names and addressee with the secretary, who will keep a record of all applicants for situations, and submit the same to the committee of management at their monthly meetings.

pressly invited to leave their names and addresses with the secretary, who will keep a record of all applicants for situations, and submit the same to the committee of management at their monthly meetings.

To one who is not a "Blue" it may seem difficult to understand how such societice as this escape imposture. But we are assured by those who understand these things that imposition is impossible. Although in so large an establishment as Christ's Hospital, with branches both in London and at Hertford, it is out of the question to suppose that any person can know all those who have been scholars on the establishment at the same time as himself, much less those who have preceded or followed him; there are many questions, as to matters of detail, which none but the initiated can answer: and every applicant who is not personally known to some member of the committee is subjected to a rigid examination, especially if there be any reason for doubting the truth of his story. In dealing with the applications of widows or orphans of "Blues" some additional difficulties are interposed, but there are ways and means of preventing any imposture even in this class of cases.

On glancing through the subscription list we find the names of several gentlemen, who appear so lend then said to many of our public charitie. The name of eite of these gentlemen, in particular, the Hon. George Allen, is found among those of the supporters of nearly every charity in this metropolis. As we find Mr. Allen's name among the vice-patrons of this society, and not among the office bearers, we presume that he is not a "Blue." Generally speaking, however, the society has, we believe, derived its chief support from those who actually some within the pale of membership, by having themselves worn the blue uniform of Christ's Hospital in their earlier days. Present prosperity, or a falling off in the demands for relief, ought not to make the managers and members of this society less liberal in their own gifts, or less armest in their endeavours to s

"In Catholic countries, and in some parts again of England (after being discontinued for 300 years) the churchbell is solemnly rung three times every day—moraing, noon, and night—and each time, in memory of our Saviour's becoming man, is said:—

"1. The Angel of the Lord declared unto Mary: and she conceived of the Holy Ghost.

"Hall Mary! full of grace, the Lord is with thes. Elessed art thou amongst women, and blessed in the Pruit of thy wonb, Jesus. Holy Mary! Mother of God! Pray for us, singers, now, and at the hour of our death.

Lattin Latin.

may, by His Passion and Cross, be brought to the glory of Bis Resurrection: through the same Christ our Lord."

Is tin Latin?

It is recited in the vernacular by the latity; but I believe that priests and religious living in community still sometimes tee the Latin language, in which, as the universal language of the Roman Empire, when Christianity began in Europe, the litungy of the Church was of course written. The devotion takes its name from the two first words of the encient formula—the "Angelus Domini"—and for brevity is now known simply as the "Angelus."

Do the children understand it when recited?

I presume so. They understand the English language. Moreover, it is the duty surely of a teacher in a Christian school, to explain what he undertakes to teach. A large portion of this devotion is taken verbution from Holy Scripture; and if Protestant children may be supposed to understand the Bible when used as a class-book, as it often is, it is not expecting too much from Catholic children that they shall comprehend extracts from the same sacred volume.

it is not expecting too much from Catholic children that they shall comprehend extracts from the same ascred volume.

Is the recital ordered by any coclesiastical authority?

I am not aware of its being no enjoined as that its omission would be a sin. But the ecclesiastical authorities recommend it generally, as is evident from the parish church bell being tolled to remit d the people in all Catholic constries. It is at least as binding upon Catholica as the "Grace" before and after meals is upon pious Protestants. Moreover, the Pope has published spiritual "indulgences" for the punctual fervent performance of the devotion.

Is it unusual in the Catholic schools of all countries? It is usual in Catholic schools everywhere. Why should it be recited at 12 o'clock, because that is the hour at which all Catholics are engaged to usite in performing it is surely not necessary to tensind your correspondent of the benefits premised to Christians on their "gathering together" to worship.

What are the good results that flow from the recital, and what would be the evil consequences of its omission?

F: the punctual recital of the "Angelus," the mind of the Catholic is periodically recalled from the distractions of the world to a remembrance of "the one thing nearful." The devotice, it will be seen, comprises a brief resume of the principal mysteries of our holy religion, from the incannation to the passion, death, and resurrection of Our librard Load. Moreover, this devotion particularly directs the mind to a perception of the immense benefits conferred won body the human race by Mary's consenting to give of her own body the human race by Mary's consenting to give of her own body the human race by Mary's consenting to give of her own body the human race by Mary's consenting to give of her own body the human race by Mary's consenting to give of her own body the human race by Mary's consenting to give of her own body the human race by Mary's consenting to give of her own bedy the summer and the market to be hypocataleally united with the Divine Word. God graciously ordered it that as Eve, for the graiffication of her senses, made the commencement of the disobedience of the human race, which was afterwards consummated in the first Adam, so Mary, by her obedience and corrent to the proposal of the street, humbling herself to the size of reproach for the sot, should initiate the Redemption. And Carbolice shalts her in the "Hall Mary," in recognition of what they thus own to her, and in fulfilment of her own inspired prophesy,—"From henceforth all nations of the earth shall call me Biersed." The parallet, though also the contrast, between Eve and Mary is perfect. Eve is the mother of all who are born of the floch. Mary, hybeing the mother of the God-man—the second Adam—is the mother of all who are born of the floch. Mary, hybeing the mother of the God-man—the second Adam—is the mother of all who are born of the floch. I think what I have vritten will show good reasons for the "great stress" which Catbolics lay upon the due totial of the Angelus, and will turnish sufficient grounds for their considering it both a duty and a privilege to perform it. Protestants are the only Christians, I believe, who do not practice this devotion.

I am scry to perceive that another correspondent, calling himself a Catholic, has add, with reference to this subject, that he does not understand the Angelus. He cannot have been properly instructed. The best excuse I can fire for him is, that he tells us that he is a "liberal" Catholic.

THE MEMORY OF CAPTAIN COOK.

To the Editor of the Horald.

Six.—In reading an account of a meeting lately held in Sydney to consider the advisability of erecting a monument to the m-may of Captain Cook, it appeared to me that n'the of the speakers knew anything about him. Mr. Parkes asked the question, "Who was this James Cook?" I beg to state that the great navigator was born at Ednam. a village tear Kelse, county of Hosborough, Scotland; his father was a labouring man. The family removed to the neighbouthood of Stockton-on-Teex, Vorkshire. Young Cook received the first lessens of seamanship on board of a collier; having joined the Reyal Navy, his good conduct attracted the notice of his superiors; but that which brought him more prominently forward was the acience and ability he displayed in taking soundings in the River St. Lawrunce, in the year 1759.

An uncle of mine, the Rev. Mr. Parker, many years a minister of a discenting congregation in Gresolaw, Berwickshire, need to correspond with Captain Cook's widow, and I have seen a pair of compasses in his possession which belonged to Captain Cook.

On a visit to a relation of mine, who is a minister in Sunderland-on-the-Wear, in the year 1835, I read a history of Captain Cook which had just then been published, which stated that he was born at Ednam; the same village gave birth to the author of the "Beason".

About welve menths ago I saw a Gazetteer of Scotland which confirms what I have stated.

THE BURIAL OF PAUPERS.

"Rattle his bones ever the stones, He's only a pauper whom nobody owns."

To the Editor of the Herald.

Sin.—I have frequently felt surprise at the antipathy manifested by many poor destitute old people to becoming inmates of the anylum, believing there was no foundation for their prejudice. Recent disclosures concerning the treatment of the dead have considerably modified my opinics. The reason given by these people for their dislikes to becomes tomates of the asylum (if they will give any) is something to the effect that they fear ill treatment on sickness or death. Only yesterday, a poor helplass and friendless old woman, whom I have repeatedly but ineffectually persuaded to go there, answered me thus, "Oh, Sir, I have not many days to live, and I would not like to die there; "choosing rather to run the risk of dying in the street. This is not as it abould be Surely the poor, helpless, were-out members of society ought to be provided with a reduce where they may die in peace, and be bursed with a feeting of the poorhouse in their safeted days. THE NEWTOWN CEMETERY.

THE NEWTOWN CEMETERY.

To the Editor of the Herald.

Sire.—Stremuous exertions are being made by the Cemetery Company to have the bill prohibiting future burials in the Newtown Cemetery (except in certain cases and under regulations), which has passed nearly unanimously in the Assembly, thrown out in the Legislative Council.

Petitions against the bill are now being carried about from house to house by those interested in a pocuniary way in keeping this disagreeable nuisance open.

Architects and surveyors have been employed to inspect the site, and ne doubt to certify that it is nearly impossible for easy drainage from the cemetery to fail its way drough Newtown, and that the water which soaks through the graves is pleasant and bright, and that it is impossible for offensive drainage of any hind either to run towards Camperdown or Newtown, indeed the whole 'ulturence of this very influential company will be brought to beet on our Conservative element in the constitution to protect their private right to perpetuale a dangerous nuisance in the locality.

Throwing aside the disputed question of offensive drainage, of which by the way I may mention a singular proof. Mr. Gibbons, a well known contractor in Newtown, informed me to day that he grances his horses in a paddock on the Camperdown side of the comstery in which there is a waterhole, at present to all appearance clear and limple, but into which the seakage water of the cemetery flows. This water, though apparently pura, the horses will on no account touch. However, putting adde this question, the ermotory with its 14,000 decomposing bories is surrounded on three sides by dwalling-houses, many of which are only about twenty yards distant, thair back yards abutting on the boundaries. It is the centre of a very populous locality, which is eatiney dependant for water supply on w ile and tanks; there is efficiently or indirectly interested.

Is it not therefore time that this nuisance was absted, for moved it can never be? In there reason that this establishment should not share the fate of the city burial grounds? If vested interests are interfered with, let the company by all means have compensation, although my impression is that there can be no vested right in a nuisance; private interests must give way in such a case, yet it is better far that compensation be granted than that the health of a large important suburb should be imperilled, the houses untenanted, and the value of fresholds andly diminished.

I theoretic tent that the Vacilities Committee.

I electrely trust that the Legislative Council will pass this bill in its integrity without amendment, and that the inhabitants of Newtown and Camperdown will stir them-relves, and by counter petition and legitimate agitation counteract the influence they are threatened with. In the Supreme Court, on the 12th instant, an application was made for a writ of habeas corpus directed to the superieress of the Convent of the Sisters of Mercy, at Greelong, to bring into Court Mary Elion Kearney, of Lechart Station, that she may be delivered to her mother, from whose custody she was lately taken while the mother was temperarily absent on a visit of a few days to the station of Mr. Hamilton. Mary Elion Kearney was horn in 1854, and is one of the six children of her decamed father, Her father appointed four guardians to his children, two of whom are new in Ireland and two in Melbournes. One of the late Edward Kearney, the other was his wife so long as she should continue his widow. She is still his widow, but during her absence from home, in August, W. Kearney, the Melbourne co-guardian, took the girl away and put her in the convent at Geelong, and new the authorities of that institution refuse to deliver the girl back to her mother. The Court granted a rule nist, and inside it returnable on the 14th.

There seems to be little reason to doubt that the fire which bruke out in the British Queen Hotel about 3 o'closely.

The Court granted a rule nist, and made it returnable on the 14th.

There seems to be little reason to doubt that the fire which bruke out in the British Queen Hotel about 3 o'clock on Wednesday morning was the work of an incendiary. The Melbourne Fire Brigade aucceeded in extinguishing the fismes before any considerable amount of damage had been done, and an examination by the detective officers revealed a well laid plan for the total destruction of the premises. It was found that nearly all the stock had been removed, and that seventeen distinct fires had been kindles in different parts of the hotel. Unprotected fires, made of shavings scaked in kerosene and such like combustible inaterials, had been pleaced under the bods; the drawers in the furniture contained nothing but bundles of loose lucifer matches, rolled up in pieces of paper saturated with kerosene, and some 200 or 300 pieces of candle had been strewn about the floors. It is understood that the stock and premises were well insured, the former for £600. Mrs. Bedfilia Parkington, the landlady, and her mother, Margaret Muphy, have been arrested on a charge of aron.

The district coroner held an inquest on Tuesday on the candle had been streems, and some 200 or 300 ploces of candle had been streem about the floors. It is understood that the stock and premises were well insured, the former for £600. Mrs. Bedills Parkington, the landlady, and her mother, Margaret Muphy, have been arrested on a charge of areas.

The district coroner held an inquest on Tuseday on the body of James Dulling, who lost his life by falling into the River Yarra. It appeared from the evidence that decessed, who had been an engrossing clark in the service of Mr. Attenborsugh, solicitor, but was latterly out of employment, had gone out flahing near the Yarra Bend Asylum with Peter Viton, a storeman living at Richmond. On the way out he was taken with a fit, from which he receivered. In returning home, decessed, in spite of the warnings of his companion, insisted upon going along a ferce at the top of a steep bank, a hundred fact from the warrier sedge. While conversing with his friend, he mutdenly untered an exclamation, threw up his hands, and rolled down the embankment into the niver. Vitous succeeded in getting him out, after the lapse of sen or tealve minutes, but he was then dead. The jury found that decessed was accidentally drowned.

The Ballarat Star states that a little girl, apparently not more than about twelve years of ags, was found lying insensibly drunk in the gutter, in Grant-street, on Tuesday night. The police are endeavouring to find out where she obtained the liquor, in order to take proceedings against the publican.

The Ballarat Star reports the committal for trial of a reputed thief, and adds:—'The offender's house, which is situated off Eamond street, was searched at the time of his arrest for other property, but none could be found. On Monday evening, however, some fresh information having been obtained, detectives Esson, Berrill, and Hyland went to the place, and discovered in the yard a pit, covered over carefully with some sods, in which they found a tin box, containing watches, rings, chains, stude, brooches, earnings, &c., the

On Tuesday, in the Supreme Court, both parties to the action of Bruce and others v. The Queen applied for leave to appeal to the Privy Council,—the petitioners because interest had been refused to them by the Court, the Crowa because too much of everything eire had been given to the petitioners. By agreement of the parties, a single consolidated appeal, without terms to either side, was arranged, and the Court granted leave to appeal, as asked.

In its leading columns the Argus of Tuesday remarks:—Three weeks since we reviewed the condition and prospects of Tasmania, regretting that the island colony is not as prosperous and prepressive as it is picturesque and beautiful, and incidentally suggesting that, notwithstanding the houseur and dignity of a separate Legislature, our neighbours might find incorporation with a wealther colony more practically advantageous to them. In throwing out this bint we had no intention to make overtures to Tasmania on behalf of Victoria. The annaxation of the island to any one of the continental colonies could only be effected after much discussion and consideration; after the pres and couse of the master had been fully considered on both sides of the water; after a most careful and probably tedious adjustment of liabilities and obligations. In fact, if a proposal to that end were really made by one colony, and enteriamed by another, there would be small chance that the negotiations would over get beyond the stage of preliminaries. At a distance, the thing may seem easy enough—come to close quarters, and many difficulties would certainly spring up to delay, if not to prevent, the carrying out of the contemplated arrangement.

John King, the steeramen of the boat which left the file facted London, and to whose skill the address of the few who escaped death was mainly due, has arrived in Molbourne by the ship Star of Peace, which entered the bay on Tuesday.

An apparatus invented by Mr. F. Poolman, and entitled by him a "patent simplified safety disphragus regulator and coal economiser," has been in use in the engine-room of the Argus for thirteen months, and has given great satisfaction. It consists of a convoluted from tube, opening into the boiler, in which is a column of water which. Aryse for thirteen months, and has given great estellaction. It consists of a convoluted from tube, opening into the boiler, in which is a column of water, which, under pressure of steam, acts upon a lever and damps the furnace fire when the pressure reaches the point beyond which it is not desired that it should rise. By moving a weight the apparatue can can be made to regulate the pressure to test, twenty, thirty, or any other number of pounds that may be required. It effects a considerable economy of fuel, by obvisting those frequent blowings-off of steam which occur through ignorant or careless firing, and its use meterially leasens the risk of societent through neglect or inexperience in engine-driver or stoker. The apparatus is inexpensive, and simple in its construction, cosing only a few shillings per horse-power of boiler employed. It may be made by an ordinary blacksmith, and, judging from our experience, costs every little to keep in repair, that in use on our own premises having cost sothlag since it was fitted, more than a year since.

A GOOD FAMILY MEDICINE CHEET, with a prudent nee, has seved many a life; and yet we think the idea might be improved upon and reduced to a more simple form. Take some good compound, such as OOCKLE'S ANTIBILIOUS FILLS, and we find that the desired end may be obtained without scales and weights, or little mysterious compartments and acachanted bottles with crystal stoppers. Others might be need, but OOCKLE'S FILLS, as tested by many thousands of persons and found to answer their purpose so well, may be set down as the best.—Onesavan.
